The same thing holds true in the protection of horses. The blanket should cover the neck, withers, and shoulders, and be brought around the breast, and buttoned or buckled together as closely as a man buttons his overcoat when baring his bosom to the driving storm. Let the lungs heavy blanket, and he will seldom contract cooking stove, a few tons of hay, some straw, and 7 or 8 swarms of bees. It warms of the war body are not covered. We refer more particularly to blanketing horses that have become unusually warm by violent exertion, or hard driving, and exposing them to a current of cold air while they are standing still. Many of our best teamsters protect the breasts of their horses with a piece of heavy cloth about two feet square, hanging down from the lower end of the collar. This is an excellent practice in cold weather, as the most important part of the animal is constantly shielded from the cold wind, especially when traveling toward a strong current. The forward end of horse blankets should be made to fit as closely around the breast of a horse as our garments fit our bodies. Most horses will contract a violent cold almost as soon as a man, if not blanketed while he stands still after having been exercised so violently as to produce profuse perspiration. So long as a from cold winds. But allow him to stand protect his shoulders and lungs, and he will take cold sooner than some men.

When a horse is wet with sweat, the better way is not to cover the body with a heavy blanket until the perspiration has partially evaporated. > UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY. From Rev Francis Lobdell, Pastor of the South Congregational Church, Bridgeport, Connecticut. PAINTS Building Report, Jan. 21, 1864.
> Gentlemen: —I consider it a duty which I own suffering humanity to bear testimony to the virtues of Dr. Wistank's Balson or With Cheary. I have used it—when I have had occased for any remedy for Coughs, Coids or sofe Throat—18 many years, and hever, in a single instance, has it talled to refleve and cure me. I have frequently been very hourse on Saturday, and looked forward to the delivery of two sermons on the following day. ward to the delivery of two sermons on the following day with sad miscivings, but by a fiberal use of the Beisam my housetiess has hivariably been retgoical, and I have exched without didiculty.
>
> I commend it to my brethren in the ministry, and to one speakers reterrally, as a certain remody for the exchial troubles to w nich we are peculiarly exposed. Enthrely us solicited, I send you this testimonal, which or are at liberty to use in any way you choose. Perhaps be Ballam does not affect all persons a like, but it always moves my bearseness, and fits me for the ministers! rd working day—the Satdath.
> Very trup yours, FRANCIS LOEDELL.
